

Cathie Mahon Bio

Cathie Mahon is the President\CEO of Inclusiv, a national network of credit unions devoted to promoting financial inclusion and equity by expanding access to capital in low-income and communities of color. Under her leadership, the Inclusiv Network has grown to 500 community development credit unions that build wealth, resilience and empowerment in communities across 46 states, Washington DC, Puerto Rico, the US Virgin Islands and Guam.

Ms. Mahon previously led the NYC Office of Financial Empowerment, the first municipal office in the nation dedicated to promoting the financial health and well-being of city residents. She has been active in philanthropy serving as the founding director of the Asset Funders Network and currently serving on the Board of Trustees of the NY Foundation. She has run her own consulting business supporting foundations, community development organizations, business and cooperatives in the US and abroad. She formerly served as a researcher for the Aspen Institute.

Cathie has a passion for building cooperative institutions and unleashing the power of credit unions since she held the position of the Director of Policy and Program Development at the National Federation of Community Development Credit Unions. She has been a member, a volunteer and a board member for more than 20 years serving as Treasurer of the Lower East Side People's FCU in Manhattan and President of the Transfiguration Parish FCU in Brooklyn NY.
