

Hannah Vargason: Hannah is Program and Operations Director at the Center for Impact Finance. She has experience in small business and community economic development. At the Center, she has researched and developed tools and training in clean energy and resilience, local food systems, real estate development, and community banks. Before joining the Center, Hannah spent ten years at Partner Community Capital (formerly Natural Capital Investment Fund), a small business lender and CDFI that serves Central Appalachia and the Southeast. During her tenure she held various roles in development services and partnerships, supporting entrepreneurs and mission-driven lending across the region. Hannah has over fifteen years' experience in the nonprofit sector overall, a Master of Public Policy from the College of William and Mary, and a BA in Economics and Anthropology from Mary Baldwin College (now Mary Baldwin University). Hannah is also a founding Steering Committee Member of the CDFI Women's Network. She is based in the Washington, D.C. metro area.
